READING COMPREHENSION

The image shows a screenshot of a website for Aaron 'Wheelz' Fotheringham. The website has a purple and green checkered header with a 'UNIT 3' badge. The browser address bar shows 'www.superaaronwheelz.com'. The navigation menu includes 'HOME', 'NEWS', 'BIO', 'PHOTOS', and 'CONTACT'. The main heading is 'Aaron 'Wheelz' Fotheringham'. The text describes his condition (spina bifida), his nickname 'Wheelz', and his achievements as a professional extreme wheelchair athlete. It mentions he was born in Las Vegas in 1991 and started BMX at age 8. He has participated in several BMX competitions and has broken about 30 wheelchairs. He has performed stunts, including the world's first wheelchair backflip. He became famous after a video clip of his first backflip. He has appeared in magazines, newspapers, and on TV. He has joined the Nitro Circus group and performed on live tours in Australia, New Zealand, and Europe. A photo shows Aaron in a wheelchair performing a stunt at a Nitro Circus Live event. A note explains that spina bifida is a condition where the spine is not closed, leading to nerve damage.

Aaron 'Wheelz' Fotheringham

Aaron Fotheringham can't walk. He was born with spina bifida* and he uses a wheelchair to get around. His nickname is 'Wheelz' and that's not surprising when you see his amazing abilities: for him, his wheelchair is a BMX or a skateboard!

Aaron was born in Las Vegas in 1991. At the age of 8, he started going to the skatepark with his older brother, Brian. At first, he watched his brother riding his BMX. But one day, Brian told Aaron, 'Why don't you have a go and ride your wheelchair in the park?' Aaron tried and fell several times but soon he was hooked. Since then, he has participated in several BMX competitions. He hasn't always won but he has always had fun. Today, Aaron is a professional extreme wheelchair athlete.

Has Aaron broken any wheelchairs? Yes, he has! He has broken about 30 wheelchairs and he has broken a bone too but he's also done some incredible stunts, including the world's first wheelchair backflip. He was 14 years old at the time!

When Aaron put the video clip of his first backflip on the Internet, he became famous. His life has changed since then. He has appeared in magazines and newspapers. He has also appeared on TV. He has joined an action sport group, Nitro Circus, and performed on live tours in several parts of the world. He has been to Australia, New Zealand and Europe.

Aaron wants to change the world's perception of people in wheelchairs. He has been to camps for children with disabilities and taught them simple tricks to show them that their wheelchair is not a restriction. Aaron inspires children – and people of all ages around the world – to have a go and have fun along the way!

*spina bifida: the spine is closed to protect the nerves that send messages between the body and the brain. When a baby is born with spina bifida, there is an opening in the spine and these nerves are damaged.
